HATBAND HIT

And This Saved the Life of Baldwin Pinner.

A Lively Shooting Affray Near Julien Yesterday Morning.

A shooting bee took place yesterday morning on the farm of Mr. J. R. Caudle, near Julien, between Leslie and Lee Shipp and Baldwin Pinner, all colored farm hands, in which a dozen shots were fired.

It seems that the three negroes had engaged in a row the evening before and pistols were drawn, but they were separated before any harm was done.

Pinner, who is a day laborer at work for Mr. T. L. Yonts, came over to Mr. Caudle's yesterday and as soon as he met the Shipp men the difficulty was renewed. Pinner claims that both men opened fire on him and shot at him ten times, only one ball striking him. He returned the fire, shooting twice, but without effect. This ended the battle and Pinner came to town immediately and had warrants issued for the arrest of the two men.

Deputy Sheriff John Boyd went down to serve the papers but had not returned when we went to press.

Pinner was hit in the back of the head by one of the balls, but the wound is only a flesh one. The bullet passed through his hat in two places. When it struck the hat it deflected, thus saving his life.

EXCITING RUN-A-WAY.

Country Team Takes a Tour of the Town.

An exciting run-a-way took place in the city Saturday afternoon. A team driven by Mr. Owen, of Sinking Forks, became unmanageable as he was coming down Ninth street and commenced to run.

Mr. Owen was thrown from the saddle and sustained several bad cuts and bruises, but was not seriously hurt. The team ran up Virginia, to Thirteenth, then to Main and back as far as Dr. Hill's residence, where the wagon ran against a tree and was stopped.

The lead horse was thrown to the pavement, but he was not much hurt. The hind axle of the wagon was broken, the only damage done to the wagon.

MONARCH MINES WEIGHBOSS

Shoots Will Woodward, a Negro Miner.

Henry O'Bryan, weighboss at the Monarch coal mines, near Madisonville, shot and perhaps fatally wounded Will Woodward, a colored miner, late Thursday evening. The difficulty arose over the weighing of the negro's coal, it seems.

O'Bryan gave bond and his examining trial will probably not occur until the final result of Woodward's injuries are known. O'Bryan is a brother of T. H. O'Bryan, a merchant at Dawson Springs.

TAKE DAWSON WATER.

Said to Be a Sure Cure for the Grip.

Dawson water is said to be a sure cure for the Grip, when taken before the disease has succeeded in getting to much of a grip on you. It is recommended by some of the leading physicians and its effect is almost marvelous. The Arcadia hotel at Dawson Springs is open for guest the year round and there are many persons now at this popular place, recuperating. Hopkinsville people who have symptoms of the grip should try this remedy at once.

Many of the stores were closed yesterday during the services at the Tabernacle.

SAM IS HERE.

The Tabernacle Meeting Opened Sunday With Three Services.

Big Crowds at Every Service and The Singing is Very Fine.

Sam Jones began a ten days' meeting at the Tabernacle Sunday morning and preached to a very large crowd.

His daughters, Mrs. Graham and Miss Jones, his associate Rev. George Stuart and the singer, E. O. Excell, all came Saturday night, while the evangelist arrived on the midnight train from Madisonville.

The day was an ideal one and there was a general outpouring of the people from both city and country. This is the fourth time in six years that Sam Jones has held a meeting here and his sermons are not different in style from those he has preached before. He may have picked up a few more slang words and learned some additional phrases of abuse and invective, but there are all of the characteristic features that have proved to be such drawing cards in the past. The novelty however has worn off and Mr. Stuart is regarded by many as the most effective preacher of the two. Mr. Jones preaches in the morning and at night, while Mr. Stuart conducts the afternoon service.

The singing is very fine. Mr. Excell is a great musician and assisted by a splendid chorus, his song services are very enjoyable to all lovers of music. Mrs. Graham presides at the organ much of the time.

The meeting is now fairly under way and will continue until the middle of next week.

In point of attendance it is by no means behind the previous meetings and the crowd Sunday was almost equal to the best days of the big Moody meeting, when the Tabernacle would not hold the people.

Give the Devil His Dues.

In his Sunday night sermon Mr. Jones stated that he had been informed by "leading citizens" that the city of Hopkinsville had during the last eight months made more progress towards hell than ever before in its history. At the close of his sermon Judge Leavell, who has done so much to improve the morals of the city, sought an interview and made it clear to Mr. Jones that he been misinformed.

There has never been a time when Hopkinsville was more law abiding than the present. There is less crime, less drunkenness and even less dancing, which Mr. Jones considers a terrible sin, than ever before in thirty years. The court records, the news columns of the papers and the testimony of the people will sustain Judge Leavell in the statement he makes. As Mr. Jones has been here about every other year since 1893, it may be that his various meetings have had something to do with this improvement in morals. Whether this be true or not, Mr. Jones owes it to the good people of Hopkinsville to secure accurate information before he makes statements that do an injustice to those who are working to the same ends that he is and with a good degree of success. We can go further and say for Judge Leavell that he has repeatedly fined persons for using indecent language on the streets and the effort to improve public morals in this respect has been so successful that Mr. Jones may listen closely to the language he hears on the streets while here and he do not believe he will hear any language uttered as offensive to public morals as much that is said in his own sermons. If so he has only to report the matter to the police and the guilty parties will be fined. This protest is entered in all kindness and we hope and believe that Mr. Jones will correct his statement, now that his attention has been called to its misleading character.

THE FARMERS INSTITUTE.

The Church Hill Meeting Well Attended Both Days.

The farmers institute of Church Hill Friday and Saturday was largely attended both days.

Papers were read, speeches made and a good deal of business transacted of great interest to the farmers.

The people of the vicinity had on hand an abundant supply of provisions for all who were present, and dinner was served each day in Church Hill grange style.

The occasion was not only a profitable one but was also a pleasant one to all who attended.

At Hot Springs.

BROKE HIS THIGH.

Serious Accident Happens to Deputy Sheriff Golay.

Deputy Sheriff H. H. Golay met with an accident Saturday afternoon that will confine him to his bed for a month or more. He was riding a bicycle and as he turned the corner at Seventh and Main he fell with great force against the stone crossing. He was taken to the City Bank and an examination showed that his left leg had been broken between the hip joint and knee. He was placed upon a cot and carried to Mrs. Davis' boarding house on Elm street, where Drs. Sargent and Jackson reduced the fracture, which proved to be a very serious one.

Mr. Eugene Wood has moved into his elegant new home on South Main street, corner of Sixteenth. Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Echles, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank River are boarding with Mr. and Mrs. Wood.

105 SOUTH MAIN STREET

TUESDAY, JAN. 24, 1899.

Yesterday was the day Senator Gibson was to open his campaign at Lebanon.

Porter J. McCumber, Republican, will be the new Senator from North Dakota, having secured the caucus nomination.

The Senate on Saturday passed the Nicaragua canal bill by a vote of 48 to 6. Senator Lindsay was one of the half dozen who voted against it.

There are very strong indications that the Louisville Dispatch will not remain neutral in the contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

If John Allen, of Mississippi, succeeds in getting into the Senate he and Dewey ought to be able to enlighten matters a little in that stupid body of working off some of their jokes.

The suicides in Louisville recently amounted almost to an epidemic. The papers are at a loss to understand why Louisville is selected by so many as a place to quit the world. There are other towns from which people might leave with but little regret, while Louisville is a pretty nice town. For instance, there is Clarksville, Tenn.

The announcement that Ex. Gov. Brown will not enter the gubernatorial race, will greatly simplify the contest in this part of the State. Gen. Hardin is a strong favorite, unless it should develop that he is to be handicapped by the support of those clamoring for a return to the electoral law under which the state was stolen in 1895 and 1896.

It is now known beyond doubt that the yacht Paul Jones, a pleasure boat that left Louisville with eight passengers about the first of the year, was lost Jan. 6 near the mouth of the Mississippi river. Wreckage from the boat has drifted ashore, but the bodies have not been recovered. There were three young ladies in the party, one of them Miss Taggart, of Indianapolis, and another Miss Yeom, of Louisville.

New Uses For Bandana Handkerchiefs.

No one knows just how the bandana had come in vogue. Possibly the present interest in Southern folk-lore or the craze for negro songs brought it about. The girls really don't care very much about the source of this new craze; they are devoting all their spare time to hunting up genuine bandanas, the kind worn by the "old nigger mammy" in plantation days. Only the real article is "the thing," a handkerchief that is made up of squares of soft-blended reds and yellows and blues and greens, and that instantly suggests rich brown skin and kinky, woolly locks. And real bandanas are not easy to pick up, I can tell you. What girls use them for, are sofa pillows, mufflers, neckties and shirt-waists. Demorest's Magazine for February.

NO. 52 TO CARRY MAIL.

New Schedule On This Division of the L. & N.

A new time card went into effect yesterday on this Division of the L. & N., which changed the time of departure of nearly all of the north-bound passenger trains. The most radical change is that of the Chicago limited, which has heretofore departed at 9:36 a. m. Under the new schedule this train will arrive at 9:09 p. m. The regular north-bound passenger will leave here at 9:45 a. m., instead of 10:18, and will carry the mail formerly handled by No. 92, the Chicago limited. The accommodation will arrive at 8:30 p. m., and the St. Louis fast train will pass here at 10:24 p. m. instead of 9:46. There was only one change made in the departure of south-bound trains. No. 51 leaves at 5:27 p. m., instead of 5:23. The Chicago limited passes at 12:08 a. m., the St. Louis fast train at 6:35 a. m., and the Nashville Accommodation leaves at 6:15 a. m.

The Gibson Girl Criticized.

Any one who has noticed carefully the Gibson illustrations understands what constitutes the approved carriage for a woman to-day. Her girls invariably have an erect figure, with chest thrown forward and abdomen in, flat shoulder-blades, and head back, and chin up. All of these points are necessary to a good carriage, but the type of the fashionable girl of the period, lacks one important element of attractiveness in a woman. She is not graceful.

The Du Maurier heroines on the other hand are graceful, however they may be criticised in other respects. If we place side by side sketches by these two artists, the comparison is instructive. The anatomy of the Du Maurier women is to peculiar sometimes as to make them appear almost deformed when their different members are looked at in detail, but the pose is always graceful. Demorest's Magazine for February.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing her work. ## AN AGED HOMESTEAD.

Rather Remarkable History is That of the Brown Place.

The farm on which Mr. S. M. Brown is now living, seven miles east of Hopkinsville, near the Fairview pike, has been in the family for more than 100 years, having been settled by his grandfather, Gravenor Stuart, back in the 17th century. During this long period there have been but five deaths on the place. Gravenor Stuart died there in 1835, or thereabouts, two of his children died there near the same date. About 1858 a child of Mr. Petty died there. In 1880 Mrs. Jennie Brown died, making a total of only five during this long period and during said time there has been no serious sickness. Old Mrs. Jane Stuart lived there many long years, but at her death was living with Mr. Brown's mother on an adjoining farm, where Mrs. Cason is now living. It is on this place that Gravenor S. Brown now lives. He is a brother of S. M. Brown, and Judge Brown of this city. Grave, as he is familiarly called by every one, is 79 years old, never took a drink of spirituous liquors in his life, never drank any coffee, never used tobacco, never had a personal difficulty in his life, never took a dose of medicine of any kind and was never sick a minute in all his life. He is known by everybody in the surrounding counties for his strict integrity and moral worth and accommodating habits. He is also an old bachelor and one of the ten Brown brothers who rode in our county fair about 40 years ago, and is one of the four that are now living.

Parsnip Complexion.

It does not require an expert to detect the sufferer from kidney trouble. The hollow cheeks, the sunken eyes, the dark, puffing circles under the eyes, the sallow, parsnip-colored complexion indicates it.

A physician would ask if you had rheumatism, a dull pain or ache in the back or over the hips, stomach trouble, desire to urinate often, or a scolding in passing; if it after passing, there is an unsatisfied feeling as if it must be at once repeated, or if the urine has a brick dust deposit or strong odor.

When these symptoms are present, no time should be lost in removing the cause.

Delay may lead to gravel, catarrh of the bladder, inflammation, causing stoppage, and sometimes requiring the drawing of the urine with instruments, or may run into Bright's Disease, the most dangerous stage of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great discovery of the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, is a positive remedy for such disease. Its reputation is worldwide and it is so easy to get at any drug store that no one need suffer any length of time for want of it.

However if you prefer to test its wonderful merits, mention THE HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKIAN, and write to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle and book telling all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail.

FOUR CASES.

Disposed of by Judge Candler Yesterday Morning.

Four cases were tried by Judge Candler yesterday. Will Gray, colored, charged with carrying a pistol, fornication and breach of the peace, entered a plea of guilty to the last charge and was sent to the work house for 25 days, the other charges being dismissed.

Will Jackson and Viola Wheeler, both colored, breach of the peace, each sent to the work house for 20 days.

Walter Hopson, col. b. p., dismissed.

W. S. Winton, on a plea of guilty of breach of the peace, was fined $5.

GLAD TO GET OUT.

Volunteers Mustered Out and Returned to Their Homes.

A party of young men from Owensboro, just out of the army, passed through the city Saturday enroute home. They had been mustered out of the 16th infantry, regular army, after seven months' garrison duty, and were delighted at being out of the military service. There were about a dozen of the Owensboro boys, and on the same train were about 75 soldiers, white and colored, who had been given their discharges and were going to their homes.

Serious Case of Internal Ulcerated Piles Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla—Able to Work for the First Time in Four Years.

"My husband was taken with severe internal ulcerated piles. He was apparently cured but the old trouble came back as bad as ever. He became very weak. After a while he gave up all other medicines and began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine did him wonderful good. In about two months he was able to walk out in the yard. When he had taken seven bottles he was able to ride out every day and work a little and he had gained 40 pounds in weight. He is now about as well as he ever was and has been at work on his farm. Last fall he had done for four years. I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most wonderful medicine in the world." NOLIE E. HINAB, Deatsville, Kentucky.

UNJUSTLY CENSURED.

The Louisville & Nashville Agent
Not to Blame for the Removal of the Telephone.

The Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company on last Thursday evening removed from the L. & N. depot office the free railroad instrument that had been a part of the telephone exchange for several years. Mr. J. M. Adams, the agent of the L. & N., was sick in bed at the time and the instrument was taken out without his knowledge, and without notice to him that such a step was contemplated. As the railroad company has been subjected to some unfriendly criticism for permitting the telephone to be taken out, this statement of facts is but just to Mr. Adams, at whom the censure seems to be directed.

When the present company acquired the telephone exchange years ago, the manager asked permission to place a free telephone in the depot for the benefit of the subscribers. Mr. Adams referred the request to his superior official, and the consent was given. The telephone has been there ever since until removed without warning that the policy of the company had been changed. The agent of the road was not even given a chance to retain the instrument by paying for it, but he was out of his office when the instrument was taken out. Whether the new manager of the local exchange was acting under instructions to take out this and other free telephones or acted upon his own authority, Mr. Adams says he does not know.

If any correspondence had taken place between the higher officials of the railroad and telephone companies, Mr. Adams had not been communicated with in regard to the matter. In fact, whatever inconvenience may result from the step taken must be laid at the door of some one else besides the railroad's local representative.

The KENTUCKIAN is informed that other telephones understood to be free or complimentary have not been removed, and it looks like the L. & N. had been singled out to be dealt with in an unfair manner.

Mr. Adams is an official who enjoys the respect and confidence of everybody in Hopkinsville. He is polite, courteous and attentive to business and has devoted the best years of his life to making friends for his company. He has pursued the even tenor of his way, often in the face of officiousness that amounted to persecution, and through it all has patiently striven to please an over-exacting public and no man in the city, in any calling, has more friends than Matt Adams.

The KENTUCKIAN does not know the Cumberland people's reasons for taking out an instrument placed in the railroad office at their own request. The telephone company may have decided that it did not care to keep a free instrument in the depot any longer for the benefit of its patrons. The company had a right to discontinue the service, but in doing so it should have given the public an explanation and assumed the responsibility and should not have placed Mr. Adams in a position to be misrepresented by those who seldom let an opportunity escape to criticize the L. & N. people.

Should the girls of the United States arise in their might and boycott the chewing gum trust there would soon be a financial crash in the new combine.

Amusing Story Told of a Now Prominent Frenchan.

M. Georges Clemenceau, who has been so prominently before the public in the Dreyfus affair as editor of the Aurore, told us a good story in the chamber of deputies the other day. Years ago, when he was the mayor of Martre, and at the same time a deputy, he opened a dispensary in the quarter, where advice was given free, for Clemenceau is a specialist in skin diseases. One day he noticed that he had just one hour in which to get his luncheon and go down to the chamber, where he had to interpellate the government. He called his assistant and said: "How many more patients are there waiting?"

"Six," replied the man. One after the other had his case diagnosed, and Clemenceau, after another glance at his watch, said: "Tell the other two to undress at once, as I have only two more minutes to wait." One entered, and Clemenceau wrote out a prescription in the twinkling of an eye.

The last man came in as naked as the day when he was born. Clemenceau eyed him for a minute and then said: "You are suffering from no skin disease. What have you come here to worry me for?"

The man looked at him aghast for a minute, and replied: "Skin disease? I never said I had a skin disease. Your man came in and told me to undress, M. le Depute, and I did so. All I wanted to ask you was to use your influence to get my sister a place in the post office in Algeria."

Clemenceau smiled, took his name, and did use his influence—To-day.

DON'T USE BLOTTING TAGS.

You May Make Public What You Wish Kept Private.

Said an official at the general writing counter in a big post office: "Be careful how you use the blotting paper."

Remembering that good blotting sheets could be had for a penny, I inquired "Why?"

"We have more inquisitive than ready-going visitors," he said. "Some who have little or no business to mind take pleasure in acting over to others. Lots of idle folks drop in here purposely to examine the blotting pads."

"Not that the examination is profitable to the examiner in the general sense, but look there—you observe the old gentleman in the blue pilot coat at the central counter? His hobby is to busy himself with other people's concerns. To-day he is quizzing the pads are new, and offer no amusement."

"I have seen him," (in a lowered voice) "take up pad after pad, place a small hand glass over them, and read what impressions late writers have left on the absorbent paper. He is a pest, but we cannot expose him."

"Sorry to say, more than one lady finds amusement in similarly treating blotting pads. One, in particular, lingers long in the vicinity of the writing counters. Carrying a small folding glass, she seems to delight in reading snatches of communications which the pads have mirrored on their sheets. When disturbed, she pretends to be interested in writing, or filling a telegraph form. Yet, I warn you not to use the official pads too liberally." Pearson's Weekly.

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 20.—The steamer Danube, which arrived from the north to-day, brought about sixty men from Dawson and Altin, with about $400,000 in gold dust. The Dawson men say that the upper dominion creek is panning out well, running from $2.50 to $4 a pan. A great deal of typhoid fever is reported at Dawson, some say fully 800 cases. Seven men have been frozen to death in the Klondike this winter.

A SCHEME OF JOSEPH LEITER

Will Control the Automobile Business of the World.

New York, Jan. 17.—Joseph Leiter, of Chicago, has organized a company which will control the compressed air and autotruck and automobile business of the United States and the South America and other foreign countries. The company is the International Air and Power company, incorporated at Trenton, to-day with an authorized capital of $7,000,000. Mr. Leiter's name does not appear among the incorporators, but the incorporators are intimate friends and business associates of his, and he controls a majority of the stock of the new company.

According to Mr. Leiter, the first output of the company will be 80 autotrucks and 100 street cars, which will be manufactured under 200 patents issued to Hoadley and Knight. The street cars will be run on the cross-town lines by the Metropolitan Street Car Company. As soon as the new company, of which Richard Croker is the head and chief owner, for the operation of autotrucks in New York, is fully organized, a similar company to control the drayage and hauling business of Chicago will be organized in that city.

Winter Feeding.

When the winter seasons comes on there are always inquiries about feeding, how to feed, etc., from beginners. There is little, if any difference, in summer and winter feeding. In cold weather the fowls require more feed, that is, more of certain kinds of feed which go to make fat and warmth. Corn, wheat, oats, fed whole, or ground and mixed with brand and middlings, and scalded; make a good feed for once a day. The more green stuff, such as cabbage, lettuce, turnip tops, or chopped turnips, the more eggs will the fowls produce, if the birds have warm houses.—Fancier's Review.

Eggs must have been dried on a rack when the owners of the ## American White Minorca Club.

The American White Minorca Club has been organized, and the following officers elected: President, J. W. Lyder, Akron, Ohio; vice-president, W. W. Brown, Ogden, Utah; secretary, Wm. Sapper, Erie, Pa.; treasurer, C. W. Jerome, Fabius, N. Y. These officers also compose the executive committee.

An honorary vice-president is to be appointed for each State, from among the more prominent White Minorca breeders, to assist in maintaining the interests of the White Minorcas, and of the members of the club. The popularity of the White Minorcas among those who know them best, is significant of their future possibilities, and the popularity they are bound to enjoy as their many good qualities become better known, and consequently appreciated. They are worthy of our best efforts and skill in breeding them to the highest possible type.

All breeders of the White Minorca are cordially invited to join the organization, and to assist in placing our favorites where they deserve to be placed, among the most popular breeds of the twentieth century. By so doing you will serve your own interests while serving theirs, and our united efforts should accomplish much for this noble breed in the years to come, which is the aim and purpose of the American White Minorca Club.

The membership fee is one dollar, which, together with one dollar for the first year's dues, should be sent to Wm. Sapper, secretary, Erie, Pa.

Respectfully,
C. W. JEROME & Co.

Golden Wyandottes.

Golden Wyandottes are known as the "Beauty breed." They are bred wherever fancy poultry is kept, the world over. Ten years ago, when the late Joseph McKee and I offered them to the public, I predicted that they would become famous as both a utility and a fancy fowl. English fanciers took to them readily.

The Golden is undoubtedly the favorite variety among breeders and lovers of the Wyandotte. The colors in the plumage rival those of the Peacock. The rich golden bay and the brilliant greenish black harmonize beautifully.

When one stops to think of the labor of establishing a new variety, the wonders of scientific breeding are realized. The Golden contains in most instances seven-eighths Silver Wyandotte blood. The numerous disappointing matings, in the attempts to secure desired results, are never known to the buyers of a bird that is finally brought to fixed characteristics. The originator of a variety never gets paid for his work except in the form of his own satisfaction.

The Golden Wyandotte has taken a firm hold on the fanciers in many of the European countries, and also in Australia, New Zealand, Japan, South Africa and South America. We have shipped them to fourteen foreign countries.

In the matter of utility, there is no breed which will outlay the Golden. They are suited to all climates. They do not become too heavy and fat in the second year. They have neat, trim bodies, yet are sprightly and good foragers when at liberty, and are, at the same time, able to stand confinement. They are now bred to a high state of excellence, in respect both to points and utility.—Ira C. Keller in American Poultry Journal.

It is not unlikely for Boston that her new passenger station cost $13,000,000, covers 13 acres of ground and was dedicated on Friday, but that it is not so large as the great

MRS. NELSON A. MILES.

Some of the Things She Has Done to Earn the Gratitude of the American Soldiers.

When the roster is made up of the women whose brains, energy, sympathy, private means and public influence have gone to make them powerful in the late war with Spain there should rightly come high up in this list the name of Mrs. Nelson A. Miles, wife of the general of the army of the United States. Never conspicuous in any way in her charitable work, even in Washington, where she makes her home, Mrs. Miles has accomplished a work, says Leslie's

MRS. NELSON A. MILES
(Wife of the General of the Army of the United States.)

Weekly, that has made her name the most beloved and revered of any woman whose praises are sounded throughout the ranks and file of the army. It is not often there is met with a member of the fashionable world a woman of warm heart, deep sympathies and wide philanthropy; yet in Mrs. Nelson A. Miles all these qualities are combined. Early in the summer the first practical steps to organize a relief society for the families of poor soldiers were taken by Mrs. Miles. Among other well-known district relief associations for the benefit of the soldiers in which Mrs. Miles has taken an active interest, yet always almost unknown as to her identity, were the "Sons of War" on Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, one of the first organizations of the kind to be established; the "Legion of Loyal Women," who had rooms and refreshments for the soldiers on Ninth street; and the "Relief of the Ladies of the Pension Bureau," which fed between six and seven thousand troops as they passed through Washington. Mrs. Miles, the wife of the late Col. Chamberlain, United States army, took up the first collection for this purpose among the ladies of the pension bureau. While to the generosity of the latter is due in great measure the ability to carry out this great work, the task of remaining in Potomac hall day and night devoted upon a small band of noble-hearted women living in the vicinity of the hall, and especially upon Mrs. Newmeyer. When, toward the latter part of July, the sick and wounded soldiers were being brought in by thousands Mrs. Miles, who is secretary of the National White Cross Society of America, accompanied by her daughter, went from Washington to Fortress Monroe. The state of affairs for hours passed, anything chronicled. One morning during the fiercely hot weather they lay at the government hospital seven men wrapped in their army blankets, without which they could have been nude. Mrs. Miles went from one to the other in charge, demanding that the great storehouse crowded with clothing for soldiers from the women of the United States be opened, but she had authority. She demanded the key, and forthwith waiting the "color to the women of the United States I unlock these doors!"

JOSEPH D. SAYERS.

New Governor of the State of Texas Is a Public Man More Than Local Reputation.

The new governor of Texas, the popular Joseph D. Sayers, was elected in November last by nearly 200,000 majority.

Gov. Sayers has represented Texas in congress for many years, was chairman of the committee on appropriations during the Fifty-third congress, and during that term received the appropriations over $40,000,000.

He was born at Grenada, Miss., in 1841; removed to Hattiesburg, Tex., in 1861; entered the confederate army in 1862, and served throughout the war. He was admitted to the bar in 1865, afterwards served as a member of the state senate, was chairman of the state executive committee and elected lieutenant-governor of the state in 1891. It will thus be seen that he has served the state of Texas in places of the most important trust, and has now the highest position in the gift of the people.

Why They Fail.

A lot of people rush into the poultry business without any capital or experience, and the consequence is failure. They read of the success of others, and imagine they can do as well, without considering for one moment that they are not equipped for the venture. So many people start out on a scale that is nothing short of ridiculous. We have known men to quit jobs and start in the poultry business with hardly enough money on hand to pay for one month's provisions, expecting to make a living out of the business from the start. To the amateur poultryman we have this to say: Do not quit your job and expect to make a living with poultry the first year; if you do you are certain at the end of the year to be among those who swear that there is nothing in keeping chickens.

The best way to start in the poultry business on a large scale is to start with only a few, learn all you can about chickens, and then try to breed all the good birds you can take care of without crowding, the first year. If, at the end of the year, you are satisfied to go ahead, and have enough money on hand to get everything ready for a larger breeding flock, as well as to carry you through the year for the necessities of life, then you might quit your job and start in; but remember, that this first year is what counts. You learn whether you have a taste for the business, and get a pretty good idea of raising poultry. The second year you should be able to produce a flock large enough to enable you to go into it more heavily, and with ordinary success you should make a good living off of five hundred hens.

We would strongly advise you, when starting, to be governed by the following rules: First, start with the best to be had; second, decide what you desire to breed for—eggs or meat; third, get one variety, and stay with it. If you breed only one variety you can soon, by advertising a little and exhibiting your birds, make a reputation on them, and sell a good lot at good prices, while the rest can go to the market. Do not start with the idea that you can sell all you breed at fancy prices, for you will not be able to do so for some time. To earn a reputation for your fowls, you must advertise for at least one year before you can expect much return. The poultryman who succeeds in selling all his fowls at good prices, is the man who has spent years in the poultry business, and many dollars in advertising.

But do not put in an advertisement for one time and quit. You had better throw your money into the sink, and let the plumber buy beer with it. To be candid with you, we do not believe that the one time advertisement pays one in ten, for the reason that those who read your advertisements are not always ready to buy, and when they look for you again you are gone, and they buy from the fellow who keeps the steady advertisement.

Make up your mind how much you intend to put into your advertising, and how many papers you intend to use, then divide your money so as to cover the whole year. Remember that "The constant drop of water wears away the hardest stone."

But one big wave pushed asunder gives the other dog the bone. Pacific Poultryman.

A man's fish has nothing to do with his voracity, yet there are Texans and others who insist that they ought not to be fined for fighting any one who "gives them the lie." The pug of the prize ring would be highly useful in every community if his skill and strength could be made to show who are the liars.

Feeding By Measure.

Some of our new members are feeding by measure. It is not practical, and it doesn't pay. Those who feed their fowls a measured allowance, daily, will sooner or later come to the realization that they are in the wrong. You can't feed the same given quantity of food in and day out, and have good results.

The only sure rule for feeding is to feed according to appetite; feed them what they will eat up clean and quickly, and keep them hungry and scratching.—Farm Poultry.

Roup.

I believe that one may gain experience and knowledge by experimenting according to his own dictates, and by such find remedies that will be of service, not only to his own stock, but to the fraternity at large. That is, if he will give his experience and allow others the benefit if they choose to try. Some will, and others go on as they have, in some old rut, no matter if their own particular cure is good for not, or if a so-called advertised one gives him any return for the outlay. Last year I purchased two chicken coops, being crowded in the old quarters. These were both new buildings, one having been used a short time, and the other claiming no diseases had been housed in it. Late in August I noticed two chickens sneezing; then the other looked bright and well, but next day more were down with colds, and roup appeared. Then I tried to find the cause. This particular house was A shaped, 25 feet long by 8 feet, and 7 feet high. Two doors opened in the south side for the chickens, and were small ones, with slanting roof over each, so cutting off winds. Two sashes 6x3 feet, were on the same side, and were hinged from the bottom, opening full length. These I hinged from the top, so no rain could enter. The whole coop was flat on broad sills, and filled in from one to two feet, bringing the floor level with the sills.

Ashes first, then clay and sand, packed, composed the foundation, and over this was loose, fresh sand. My houses are all cleaned every morning, so no filth can collect. I was in a quandary, so removed all the chickens, had the building thoroughly whitewashed and disinfected with a strong solution of crude "Sanitas," after which I let it stand empty for some time. The floor being dry, I knew could not harbor dampness, so gave that idea up, and could not trace any idea. At last I refilled the coop from new stock, the last ones being then well and in my old building. I only kept brooder chicks in the A coop, as they grew too large for the brooder house. From that day I had no trouble. The windows had been closed, as cold weather was just coming, and the chicks grew and thrived. All went well until late this August. Then I noticed colds and later roup. Here was a puzzle for me, but I got the cause sooner than I expected.

Going into the coop one night about 11 o'clock, I listened. Sneezing, etc., went on from all directions. I noticed that they were all roosting as usual, some on low roosts and others on a platform near the ground. I knelt down in front of one of the windows, which was partly open. The night was a regular August one, with a heavy dew, and chilly.

The cold air swept along the floor, damp, and enough to give anyone a cold. Then I knew I had the cause of my trouble, so shut the windows, and there they stay. No more ventilation in that way. Then I had twenty-six chickens in all stages of roup and colds. I removed them to a vacant house for the carriage house, then got my drug department in order. Finally, I took each chicken and inserted a feather dipped in turpentine down its throat. As I reached the last one and set it down, they were all shaking their heads and expectorating a rosy, clear mucus from their throats. Then I commenced over again, and used a feather dipped in "Sanitas" oil; this I twisted two or three times in the throat and withdrew, after which they were washed with a solution of one to fifty of water with crude "Sanitas." As I had very little of the fluid (either works equally as well), all matter being removed from behind the lids, I then fed on mash, with lots of lard and pepper. In this operation was repeated for two days. The third, all except two were as well as usual, the remaining two taking a week, and they recovered. Since then I have tried the same thing for colds caught from getting wet and standing around in draughts outside of the coop, but in all cases a cure was effected.

I have tried different advertised cures, pure turpentine, vaseline, kerosene, etc., but in all my experience (some fifteen years) I have never seen a quicker or more effective cure than the foregoing, and I honestly believe that any one can cure by it, no matter when—only remove the cold fowls from the flock, and a good, dry board floor for your hospital. I had commenced to grow skeptical, and believe no cure existed for bad colds or roup, and really thought that if I used and thoroughly tested all the cures, "sure and certain ones," that were recommended, I would end in a mad house. However I solved it myself after things had been tried, and I doubt if there is anything better. Sickness is an enemy that may enter any flock, and when we find a remedy that cures, and cures with it a long lost brother and saying, Let us crow.

I hope this experience may do good to others, and be a caution against having windows on or near the floor level in their coops, more so if any stock sleep or even lie around on the floor. That ventilation is a certain death-trap and should be stopped. I have seen many coops built in that way.—Henry L. Banks, in Poultry Magazine.

Soon to Retire.

Dr. J. D. Clardy will soon retire from congress to the shades of private life. It is not saying too much for him to say that the Second district has never had a more conscientious, painstaking, hard working representative in the halls of congress. He has been promptly at his post always, and has carefully and willingly looked after every interest entrusted to his care by the humblest constituent. Our district has had many more brilliant, but none more faithful, representatives than John D. Clardy. His record is one of which he and his friends may justly feel proud.—Hustler.

ANTIQUITY OF THE TRAMP.

Earliest Poor Laws in England Were for His Repression.

The tramp is by no means a creature of our century. Older than American liberty, older than Magna Charta, the foundation of English liberty, is that ubiquitous mortal known to English law as the "sturdy beggar," the "ralliant beggar," the sturdy-bodied tramp. The tramp himself may not be to blame for his dislike to a settled life; in him may still dwell the nomad spirit that made our Teutonic forefathers wanderers. For if we go back to the beginning of the Christian era we shall find that all the nations of Europe, except the Greeks and the Romans, were inclined to dwelling in settled abodes as the tramp of today. They were all tramps then, and it took years and even centuries to instill into their descendants that contentment with fixity of abode which we now regard as one of the fundamental traits of human character.

That multitudes never accepted the conditions of a settled agricultural life is proved not only by the frequent mention of vagabondage in the English records clear back to the Saxon conquest, but also by the traditions of such bandit heroes as Robin Hood and Little John, and by nursery rhymes such as "Beggars are coming to town."

The earliest poor laws in England were those enacted for the repression of the nomad spirit. The insecurity of life and property consequent upon the presence of swarms of beggars and of armed bandits is the constant theme of the statutes from the beginning of parliament in the thirteenth century. In the reign of Richard II. severe penalties were provided for the "sturdy beggars." The first offense was punishable by a public whipping of the naked body; the second, by the boring or cutting off of the ears; the third, by hanging. The actual enforcement of such penalties, however, was impossible in a society permeated with the Christian teaching of almsgiving. During the fifteenth century the laws were much milder, but in the last quarter of the century the old troubles reappeared. The remedy now proposed was to fine any person who "harbored, gave money, lodging, or other relief to any such rogue, vagabond or sturdy beggar," and for the purpose of identification the tramps were to be branded on the shoulder.—A. F. Weber, in Century Magazine.
